The Weekly Regiſter.

LONDON, SATURDAY, February 27, 1731. NUMB. XLVI.

On the INGREDIENTS of a GRUB-STREET Journal.

THERE is nothing more eaſy and natural, than the Tranſition from Reforming Conſtables to the Authors of Grub-Street. They both ſeem to be Perſons of the ſame Character, and act upon the ſame Principles. One produces a Warrant from the Bench, and makes it the Inſtrument of Miſchief; the other comes directly from Apollo with a counterfeit Sign-manual, and would impoſe Ill-nature on the Town for Wit, and Scandal for Ridicule.——They put me in mind of the tenebrificous Bodies mention'd in the Spectator, that were ſaid to ray out Darkneſs, as the Sun does Light. It ſeems to be their Buſineſs to eclipſe the Eye of Reaſon, and intail Obſcurity upon the Age. Whether 'tis their Intereſt to do ſo, or whether they have not Capacities to do otherwiſe, I won't pretend to determine: But it ſhall be my Task, to remove the Cloud, if poſſible, and hold a Glaſs to reflect their own dear Figures from behind it to the World.——I know at firſt, they'll miſtake me for an evil Conſcience, and be frighten'd at the Apprehenſion of having their Errors expos'd.——But I ſhall prove their good Genius in the End, and I flatter my ſelf, reform them into Modeſty, if not into Senſe.——I ſhall behave to them, as the Angel in the Diſguiſe of a Valet (in the Tatler) did to a ſwearing Templer, he had undertaken to amend; only ſum up the Day's Expence of Dulneſs and Miſtake, and leave them to make the Application. Perhaps they are not aware of the Amount, and the Repreſentation will teach them more Frugality for the future.——In the mean Time, 'tis to be underſtood, I write to my Pupils only; and if any others have inadvertently blunder'd into bad Company, they muſt be contented with their Share of Ignominy, till they can juſtify themſelves by forbearing the Correſpondence.

When I did my Endeavour to ſettle the Principles of Criticiſm, and the Elements of Taſte, I intended it for a Standard of Satire, and the Teſt of weekly Entertainments. I expected every Paper, that pretended to Politeneſs, would be compar'd with it, or with every Perſon's particular Idea of Elegance and Decorum; and ſuch as were found wanting, would be condemn'd, as deficient in the Fundamentals of what they affected to recommend: And among the firſt of theſe, I am afraid my Pupils are vain enough to range themſelves, and are pert enough to imagine, they are Spectators, Tatlers, every Thing that is learned or polite; that every contempory Author is at their Mercy, and their Dictate ſufficient to determine the Taſte of the Town. But I fancy the Ingredients of the formidable Paper they publiſh, will give us a different Opinion both of the Deſign and Execution.

The firſt Part of their Entertainment (if I may venture to give it that Name) generally conſiſts of a Lampoon on ſome unhappy Modern, who is not a Member of the Club; or ſome little private Story, that will keep the Title of their Performance in Countenance as well. Either of theſe Subjects, no matter which, is given to Mr. Bavius, who, I am credibly inform'd, has Gulliver's Mill for compoſing; and works it into a Libel mechanically.——But not to do this venerable Gentleman too much Honour, it muſt be obſerv'd, there is a weekly Collection of Scurrility and Dullneſs thro' the whole Society, which is carefully depoſited, with the fundamental Laws of the Conſtitution, in an Aſs's Head, at the upper End of the Club Room, in Oppoſition to the Lion's Head at Button's. The Aſs is in the Attitude of braying, and is adorn'd with a Fool's Cap and Bells, allowing a Slit in each Side for his Ears; but this is only in the Abſence of the Club; for at every Meeting, there is an Examination of Materials, and he, who has brought forth a Monſter of the trueſt Breed, is intitled to the Cap for the Night; and as 'tis ſeldom, but there is Merit enough to deſerve it, the Aſs is oblig'd to unbonnet to his elder Brother.——This equitable Diſtribution of Honour, occaſions a laudable Emulation among the Brethren; and many of them, by frequent Succeſs, have acquir'd a certain curioſa Felicitas in the different Branches of Dullneſs; and theſe are always diſtinguiſh'd by the Club, for Employments in their own Way. Thus, for Example, When any Man is to be call'd Names, 'tis Mr. Bavius's Province. No Man throws Dirt more outrageouſly; and he has been at the Pains of a Collection of Billingſgate Phraſes for that Purpoſe. Puns and Conundrums fall to the Share of Mr. Quibus; and gentle Mr. Poppy is the Journaliſt of the Club.—With all theſe extraordinary Aſſiſtances, Mr. Bavius begins his Invective, or Panegyrick; for till the Piece is done, 'tis hard to determine which 'twill prove. Nay, I have been told, they have frequent Debates on this Subject, after 'tis deliver'd in to the Board. They are all ready to vote Nem. Con. that it ought to be the firſt; but hardly one will be poſitive 'tis not the laſt. The firſt Riſe of this Uncertainty, was occaſion'd by an Author whom they apprehended to be an Enemy to their Club. This Gentleman, having publiſh'd ſomething which he had a Mind to recommend more effectually to the Publick, ſends a Preſent to the Club, deſiring they would be ſo good, as to write a Satire on his Performance, and he ſhould take it as the higheſt Obligation: A Panegyrick from Mr. Pope, ſays he, would not do me more Service: For if you condemn it, the World will infallibly judge it has Merit, and my Reputation will be eſtabliſh'd accordingly.——Till this Moment my Pupils were never ſenſible, that other People were ſeverer Criticks than themſelves; that Slander would never paſs for Senſe, nor Malice for Judgment; that general Charges were no Proof, and Prejudice, no Criticiſm: In ſhort, they were, or ought to be ſenſible, that they did not underſtand the Meaning of Taſte, and were Strangers to the Qualifications of a Critick; and yet they wilfully perſiſt in the ſame Round of Stupidity, and laugh at the Advice, which, in ſpite of Nature, would convert them to Juſtice and Underſtanding.

The next Diviſion of this Grub-Street Labour, is under the Direction of the mild Mr. Poppy, and is commonly employ'd with ſuch Occurrences of the Club, as he judges will beſt anſwer the general Deſign. On this Column, all the detach'd Bodies are rang'd. A wiſe Debate or two of the Members (if to be found) is order'd for the main Battel; and two or three voluntier Epigrams, for the Wings——From hence the Out-Works of Dullneſs are defended, and flying Parties ſally forth occaſionally, as Prey or Plunder is on the Road.——I ask Mr. Poppy's Pardon, for deſcribing his Station and Employment, in the Terms of War; when 'tis well known, 'tis foreign to his Character.——Poor Gentleman! he is but Aſſiſtant Secretary to the Club, and orders out harmleſs Meſſages, that have neither Teeth nor Stings. The Stile is ſo tame, and the Contents ſo innocent of Meaning, that no Body ever underſtands them as a Defiance; but a ſomniferous Charm, that was to lay the Reſentment aſleep, that Mr. Bavius might have accidentally rouz'd.——I have known many Gentlemen uſe Mr. Poppy's Writings as Opiates; and they never fail'd of Succeſs, under the moſt acute Senſations imaginable. Some Perſons ſuppoſe he always writes his Preſcriptions with liquid Laudanum, as an additional Soperifick; but I am of a different Opinion; becauſe there is no Occaſion for any ſuch Aſſiſtance; and Slumber ſeems ſufficiently at Mr. Poppy's Command without it.——I wiſh with all my Heart it was not ſo much. I happen to write this upon one of his Paragraphs; and I ſcarce know whether I am aſleep or awake: An undeniable Proof, that either I dream of one Poppy, who retails Drowſineſs weekly, in the Grub-Street Jonrnal; or elſe 'tis the God of Sleep himſelf who writes in his Character.

The third Attack upon Mankind from this tremendous Society, is in the Care of the ſagacious Mr. Quibus. This is confin'd to ſage Remarks, and ſprightly Witticiſms on the common Articles of News; and is manag'd in ſo peculiar a Manner, that many People inſinuate, that the old Fellow, who ſhews the Tombs at Weſtminſter, and Mr. Quibus are the ſame Perſons. They don't ſcruple to ſay, that his Jokes are in the ſame Manner and Stile with his; that they are introduc'd with the ſame Propriety, and play'd as often over. For Example, they inſiſt, the Joke on the Diſſenting Miniſter, who dy'd in the Church Porch, could be made by no other, but one who liv'd by the Church; and thro' a long Familiarity of Tombs and Statues, had loſt all Pity and Concern for the Misfortunes of his Fellow-Creatures.——All the Defence I could make was, to produce ſeveral others of the like Nature, which only ſerv'd to confirm them in their Belief; and Mr. Quibus was voted a Perſon, who did not know when a Jeſt was proper, or how to make one when it was.——For my own Part, I condemn all Humour on ſuch melancholy Occaſions; and prefer any one compaſſionate Sentiment, to all the Wit in the World. In this View I never could endure a Predeceſſor of Mr. Quibus, who had really more Wit than Humanity.——On ſeeing a Scaffold fall down, and a Couple of Labourers dying at his Feet; Bleſſed are the Dead (ſays he) that die in the Lord; for they REST from their LABOUR and their WORKS FOLLOW them.

This is the Method my Pupils commonly uſe, of dealing out their Labours to the Publick; and thus artfully do they divide the Buſineſs, as well as the Reputation of the Whole. What Pity 'tis ſuch Prudence ſhould be loſt upon Mankind, and that inſtead of being grateful to them all, they ſhould not allow them Fame enough for one! However, they have their own Methods to do themſelves Juſtice; and if Perſons of Senſe and Breeding refuſe their Encouragement and Approbation, they know how to make their Court to the Multitude, and byaſs two for one in their Favour.—— To this Purpoſe, they hold a general Council; and propoſe to adorn their Journal with Prints, that the Decoration may attone for every other Deficience, and Children admire what Men would not read.——Accordingly the City Companies are preſented with their Coat of Arms; and my Lord Mayor's Show is complimented in the Grub-Street Journal. This ſucceeded ſo well, that Mr. Bavius propoſes his Lordſhip's Picture, for the next Adventure; and offers a Copy of Verſes, ſuitable to the Occaſion; not without ſome ſecret Hope of being made the City-Poet, and commencing a dangerous Rival to the Laureat. The Motion was receiv'd with uncommon Applauſe; and Mr. Bavius was voted the Cap and Bells for ſix Nights following, in Honour of ſo beneficial a Propoſal.——Indeed the Affair did not prove altogether ſo lucky as they imagin'd: His Lordſhip was whimſical enough to think himſelf affronted by their Praiſes; and their Profits were all loſt, by the Inelegance of the Times.——I can't ſay, but I condole with the Town very heartily on this Diſappointment; becauſe it will deprive them of a great many ingenious Devices, they had been otherwiſe entertain'd with in Form. In particular, that very ingenious Epiſtle, in Hieroglyphicks, from Mary Toſts, the Rabbet Woman, to C. Ray, which, I am aſſur'd, was originally contriv'd by Mr. Quibus for the Grub-Street Journal, is now handed about in half a Sheet; which had otherwiſe been publiſh'd there, as a Sequel to their Comment on Mr. C——n's Operation.——The Truth is, the Stile very much reſembles Mr. Bavius's. There is the ſame Sluggiſhneſs of Period, and Poverty of Expreſſion; and no Body can deny, but every REBUS in the whole Letter, is of a Piece with Mr. Quibus's Puns, at the End of an Article of News.——I don't in the leaſt queſtion, but the ſame extraordinary Gentleman is now contriving an Anſwer from Mr. Ray to Mrs. Toſts; and if I might preſume to adviſe, there is no Place more Proper for its Publication, than the Journal he honours with his Name.——'Tis a plain Caſe, however modeſt he may be in concealing himſelf, that his own Genius will betray him; and whatever Artifices he may uſe for that Purpoſe, the World will be always ready to do him Juſtice by the Diſcovery, and vote all the Merit of ſuch wonderful Entertainments, to the Authors of the Grub-Street Journal.

N. B. The laſt Grub-Street Journal but one, was written jointly by the whole Society, as the utmoſt Effort of their Wit and Good-Manners. As the Children of Iſrael brought their Gold to Aaron to make them a God; ſo Mr. Bavius was commiſſion'd to model the Maſs, and behold! out came this Calf.——But I am told this Medley of Entertainment occaſion'd ſo great a Debate about the beſt Title to the Cap and Bells for the Night, that Mr. Bavius was forc'd to determine it alternately to each particular Member, in Compliment to his particular Share.

The COQUET; Or, the IMPERIOUS BEAUTY. From GUARINI's Paſtor Fido.

CORISCA SOLA.

WHAT Words can paint the Paſſion which I feel?
The wild Diſorder of my Soul reveal?
Is it not ſtrange that Contraries ſhould meet,
And ſuch Inteſtine, civil War create?
That Love and Hatred ſhould diſtract my Breaſt,
And rudely baniſh every Hope of Reſt?——
When I ſurvey Myrtillo's beauteous Face,
Each Lineament, each lovely Feature trace,
Think on each Motion, each attractive Grace;
Whene'er I hear his ſoft melodious Tongue,
Or liſten to the Muſick of his Song,
My Soul's on fire, with Extaſy I move,
And every other Paſſion yields to Love.
But when I think how the diſdainful Boy
Purſues another as his only Joy;
With Pride avoids my eager, longing Arms,
Wilfully blind to my ſuperiour Charms;
The furious Storm begins again to riſe,
My Rage revives, and I the Youth deſpiſe.
What! ſhall I tamely bear his proud Diſdain?
Sue for a Shepherd's Love, and ſue in vain?
Shall he preſume to ſlight my dazling Charms,
And revel in a meaner Beauty's Arms?——
Audacious Villain! to be mov'd no more!
To View my Eyes, and not my Eyes adore!

To view my Charms, and yet ſo ſenſeleſs prove,
As not to languiſh, not to burn for Love?
Shall I ſubmit, when he ſhould proſtrate lye,
Be proud, like others, at my Feet to die?
Oh! No:——The Shock my Heart can never bear;
The Thought confounds me, drives me to Deſpair.
Againſt my ſelf, againſt the Youth I rage;
Nor can my former Love the Storm aſſwage.
Myrtillo proves the Object of my Scorn;
From the loath'd Sight my Eyes with Fury turn:
My worſt of Wiſhes does the Swain purſue;
My Paſſion can no Bounds, no Compaſs know.
Thus Love and Hatred furious in their Turn,
Like intermitting Feavers, chill, and burn.——
I, who have ſacrific'd a thouſand Swains,
Laugh'd at their Love, and ſlighted all their Pains,
Now feel thoſe Fires, which they have undergone,
And gueſs at others Torments by my own.
I, who have ſtood unmov'd at all their Tears,
Deaf as the Winds to all their moving Pray'rs;
Have baniſh'd all their Hopes, with Pride ſurvey'd
The fatal Conqueſts which my Eyes have made,
Ev'n I'm oblig'd my wayward Fate to moan,
By a poor ſimple Shepherd's Scorn undone.
Coriſca! how unhappy hadſt thou been,
Hadſt thou no Lover but Myrtillo ſeen?
What wouldſt thou do? how ſooth thy am'rous Pain?
Or how revenge the Villain's proud Diſdain?
To what Extreams may that poor Maid be drove,
Whoſe fooliſh Heart admits a ſingle Love.
Coriſca's Soul ſhall ne'er be ſo confin'd;
She'll love, and change with every changing Wind.
For what is Faith, or what is conſtant Love,
But idle Dreams which jealous Doatards prove?
In vain would ſilly Man expect to find,
Or Faith, or Conſtancy in Womankind.
For if by Chance the Prodigy appears,
'Tis not th' Effect of Virtue, but of years.
Why ſhines the Sun but that he may be view'd?
What's Beauty, if conceal'd, or not purſu'd?
Happy's the Nymph, whom various Swains adore;
Her Triumph's glorious, and her Peace ſecure:
One cannot well all Offices ſupply,
But a long Train of Lovers crown our Joy.
One with a matchleſs Grace his Gifts beſtows,
And one's a Tool in Verſe, and one in Proſe.
On each the prudent Nymph confers a Smile,
And ſeems well pleas'd to ſee their various Toil.——
But none ſhall ever ſo victorious prove,
As to inflame my Heart with conſtant Love.——
And yet ſo weak my Reſolutions are,
Myrtillo ſits alas! in Triumph there.
I ſigh the live-long Day, yet ſigh in vain,
And Night but yields Variety of Pain.
Unhappy Change! to diſtant Shades I fly;
Yet all in vain: The Shades Relief deny:
In vain I wander thro' the gloomy Grove,
And trace the Footſteps of my hated Love.
——What ſhall unhappy, poor Coriſca do?——
Coriſca cannot—muſt not—will not ſue.
Shall I forever from his Preſence fly?——
I cannot go;—for if I go—I die.
In theſe Extreams what Meaſures are the beſt,
To heal my Griefs, and tune my Soul to reſt?
To ſtill this Storm I muſt approach the Swain,
And by Indulgence rouze his Love again:
By ſlow Degrees my Paſſion muſt reveal,
But the dear Object artfully conceal.
What Wiles, what Stratagems can do, I'll try;
But if all fail; to ſweet Revenge I'll fly.
The proud, diſdainful Youth ſhall quickly prove
My fierce Reſentment, if he ſlights my Love;
My haughty Rival, to his Soul ſo dear,
Shall curſe the Day ſhe did my Laurels wear;
And both at laſt ſhall to their Sorrow know,
What Miſchief, One provok'd like me, can do.

Jones*, Master of the Royal Vineyard in St. James's-Park: The Ceremony being perform'd by the Rev. Last Tuesday at the Sittings at Guildhall was debated the Affair between the Informing Constables and a Gentleman very much injur'd by them in Shoe-Lane some Time since; the Indictment was quash'd, on the Discovery of an Error in putting Maio proximo for Maio præterito; so that by the Ignorance or Knavery of some Professors of the Law, we evidently see the Commendableness of the Zeal shew'd lately by the County of York, in applying to the Parliament for their Authority to englisih the Laws, and doubt not the Wisdom of that Assembly will give a Remedy proper to a Disease grown to such a Heigth. The Prosecutor, after above 200*l.* Expence, resolves to carry on the Cause, and do himself Justice as soon as possible.

The same Day the Sessions ended at the Old Bailey, when the four following Malefactors received Sentence of Death, viz. John Chappel, for the Murder of Mary Martin in Hoxton Fields; Geo. Wheat, alias White, John Andrews, and Wm. Williams, for several Robberies and Felonies.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Florence, Feb. 3. Signor Allemanni, the Pope's Nuncio to the Court of Spain, arrived here on the 28th past, and the next Day had an Audience of the Grand Duke. 'Tis thought his Eminence will make a Tour to Parma, there to execute a Commission on the Part of his Holiness, before he proceeds to his Nunciature. They write from Parma, that the Pope is determin'd to use all Means possible to support his Right over the States of Parma and Placentia, as Fiefs of the Holy See, and has sent Instructions to his Ministers at the Courts of France and Spain, to sollicite their Assistance for that Purpose. Several Spanish Officers pass thro' here on their Way to Porto Longone, but are not permitted to enter into PortoFerraio, lest they should examine the Fortifications.

Hamburgh, Feb. 20, We are in great Hopes to see our Commerce shortly restor'd with Denmark, upon Advice from Copenhagen, that our Deputies have been graciously received: From whence we learn, that the King has advanced the Salary of his Ministers from 4000 to 8000 Crowns per Ann. to enable them to make a Figure; and that several other Regulations are on Foot, which will add much to the Lustre of the Court: That the Count de Plelo, the French Embassador there, has received full Instructions to renew the several Treaties subsisting with the Crown of France; and that Count de Rantzun d'Ackberg will not set out for London, before the King's Coronation. From Stockholm, that the General Diet will last only for the Space of three Months; that the Embassadors have already deliver'd to the King and Senate a Draught of their respective Commissions; and that the Count de Casteja, the French Embassador, has made a Declaration in the Name of the King his Master, that the stipulated Subsidies shall continue to be punctually paid. 'Tis advised from Warsaw, that the King's Departure is fix'd to the 3d of March next, and that the King will grant to the Plenipotentiary of the Duke of Courland, the Investiture of that Dutchy. From Moscow, that the Chinese Embassadors have made their publick Entry into that City with great Splendour; and that according to their last Advices, the Testedar-Sal Merchant Effendi set out on the 11th of December last from Constantinople, in Quality of the Grand Signor's Embassador Extraordinary to the Russian Court.

Constantinople, Jan 4. N. S. It has been resolved in a great Divan to go on with the War in Persia; it being judged impracticable to restore to Prince Thamas the Conquests of the Porte in that Kingdom, which have cost so much Blood and Treasure, without wounding the Honour and Dignity of the Ottoman Empire. 'Tis thought the Troubles, which are not yet entirely appeased in the Capital, where the Number of Malecontents is increased since the late Massacre of the Ring-leaders of the Revolt, did not a little contribute to this Resolution of the Divan. The Grand Vizier will not go to Persia, his Presence being judged necessary here, for the Maintenance of the Publick Tranquility; but the Army on that Side will be commanded by a Serasbier. The Porte has declared to the Emperor's Resident, that his Highness has nothing more at Heart than to keep a good Intelligence with his Imperial Majesty; and that he has with this View sent a trusty Officer to Vienna, with the Character of his Embassador, to repeat these Assurances in the strongest Manner.

Rome, Feb. 10. N. S. The Cardinal Secretary of State having received a Courier from Parma on Saturday last, had a long Conference thereupon with Cardinal Salviati, and afterwards another with Cardinal Corsini. The same Evening, he had an Audience of the Pope, to communicate to him the Contents of the Dispatches he had receiv'd by that Courier; and after his Holiness had conferr'd some time with his Eminency, he sent for Cardinal Cienfuegos, and declared to him, that he would take the Dutchess Dowager of Parma into his Protection, and assume the Government of that Dutchy and Placentia, till the Differences between the Emperor and the King of Spain are adjusted; adding, that he made this Declaration to him as Minister of his Imperial Majesty. The next Day, Cardinal Cienfuegos dispatch'd an Express to Vienna. On Monday next, the Pope will hold a great Consistory, at which all the Cardinals in Town are order'd to be present, to give his Holiness their Opinion in Writing, concerning the Affairs of Parma and Savoy. 'Tis nevertheless doubted, whether the Pope himself can be at that Consistory, his Holiness being again confined to his Bed with the Gout, attended with a little Fever; which was the Reason he could not be present at the Blessing and Distribution of the Ashes on Wednesday last. The Count del Grosso, Minister of the King of Sardinia, waits only the Result of the next Consistory, to dispatch a Courier to his Court. Cardinal Massei is upon the Point of setting out on his Legateship to Ravenna; his Eminency having already taken Leave of the Pope. Some Days ago, his Holiness sent for all the Parish Priests of this City to come to him, we cannot learn for what. M. Forbelloni, Inquisitor of Malta, has been declared Consultor of the Holy Office. Wood and Coal being very dear and scarce in this City, M. Maggi, who had the Inspection thereof, is suspended from his Office, and the Pontiff has put M. Ruffo in his room. The French Post-Master has likewise been displaced, as it is said, for opening a Pacquet of Letters directed to the Cardinal de Polignac, without his Eminency's Knowledge. Cardinal Odescalchi is dangerously ill.

Vienna, Feb. 17. N. S. At last the Count de Kufstein set out this Day for Silesia, where he is to execute a Commission to the Elector of Mentz, and then proceed to other Courts of Germany, in proportion as he receives his Instructions, which are to be sent after him. The Court of Rome seems to be in a great Flutter about the Affairs of Parma and Placentia; and 'tis reported, that the Pope threatens to excommunicate the German Troops who have taken Possession of those two Dutchies; but it does not appear that the Imperial Court give themselves any Uneasiness about it; and we are perfuaded, that in case the Holy See be permitted to keep the Dutchy of Castro and County of Ronciglione, which it is already possessed of, Satisfaction may easily be given to the Court of Rome. The Emperor has ordered Count Sinzendorff, Great Chancellor of the Court, to declare to the Ministers of Prussia and Wolfen- butte', that his Imperial Majesty was not a little pleased with the Conduct of his Serene Highness, in relation to the Affair of Hildesheim.

Paris, Feb. 3. N. S. We are still in the same Uncertainty as to Peace or War, and the Distribution of the Effects of the Flotilla, the Delay whereof is a great Prejudice to our Merchants. We hope however, that we shall come to a Decision of this grand Point, upon the Return of an Express that has been sent to Spain with the Answer of the Allies of Seville to the Declaration which the Marquis de Castellar made the 28th past in the Name of the King of Spain his Master. The Pope makes pressing Instances for this Court to stand by him in his Pretensions to Parma and Placentia, as Fiefs of the Holy See. On Monday last, the Parliament issued an Arret for suppressing the Bishop of Laon's Mandate, against which the Advocates have also brought an Appeal. The Advocates hold frequent Meetings likewise upon our Archbishop's Mandate, at which 'tis thought they will have a Stroke: But the Jesuits are so embitter'd against each other, that all the Remedies the Parliament can apply, will hardly be able to sweeten their Blood.

Paris, March 3. N. S. We have received Advice from Monaco, that Ant. Grimaldi, Prince of Monaco, Duke of Valentinois, Peer of France, Knight of the King's Orders, died there the 20th past, in the 71st Year of his Age, being born the 27th of January 1661. He was Son to Lewis Grimaldi, Prince of Monaco, who died at Rome the 3d of January 1701, and of Katharine Charlotte de Gramont, who died at Paris the 4th of June 1678. He married (June 12, 1688) Mary of Lorraine, Daughter of Lewis of Lorraine, Count d'Armagnac, Master of the Horse at France, who died the 30th of October 1724, and has left Issue the Duchess of Valentinois, and the Princess of Isenhien.
